COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

TUESDAY EVENING, JAN. 3, 1882.

THE Share Market to-day opened quiet after the holidays, and Spinning Shares have been very depressed.

Bank and Press Shares, however, are well maintained in value. Bank of Bombay has been done at 748½, Fort Press at 2,500, and Volkart Press at 525.

In Spinning Shares, the depression in the morning was very great, but the tone improved as the day advanced, and buyers came out at the low quotations. Dharumsey fell as low as 550; but they have since improved to 565. In most other Companies the tendency has also been downwards, and we have to reduce our quotations in some cases 5 or 10 and in a few cases Rs. 20 per share.

GOVERNMENT PAPER is steady at 100¾ for 4 per cent. and 109¾ for 4½.

EXCHANGE is also without very notable alteration, and we quote much as before :—

COTTON.—A retail business has been done from day to day during the holidays. Though the market is quiet and very little doing, it is only in Oomras that sellers are at all anxious to meet buyers with any concessions. We now quote, Good Broach, March 226, April 225, Omras, both ready and forward.

Good, Rs. 195; Fully Good Fair, Rs. 185; and Good Fair, Rs. 180.

Dholleras, Good, Rs. 200, March delivery.
Do. Fine, Rs. 210 do. do.

Bengals, both ready and forward, we quote :—

Fair	Rs. 186
Fully Good Fair	,, 156
Good	,, 165

The Liverpool market was closed yesterday, and Saturday, but on Friday it was reported [illegible] 10,000 bales, and American quoted 1-16 lower than when we last wrote. The week's sales had been small owing to the Holidays, only 43,000 bales. The total visible supply had advanced to 3,020,000 bales. The American Receipts for the week had been small owing, no doubt, also to the Holidays, viz., 191,000 bales, and the stock at the Ports now sums up to the very large total of 1,220,000 bales.

Import business continues very quiet, but the dealers seem to expect a little more demand again from the consuming markets now that we have arrived into a new year.

FREIGHTS.—The heavy arrivals of steamers during the past week or ten days, have had a most depressing effect on the Freight market, and rates have gone down by the run. To-day, however, there is rather more enquiry at the low rates current. Business has been done by going steamers for Liverpool at 38s. 9d., and by steamers commencing to load at 36s. 3d. Engagements have been made for Genoa and Marseilles this month's shipment at 45s. Freight payable here at 2s. Exchange.

AFGHAN NEWS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ALLAHABAD, JAN. 3.

It is reported from Kandahar that the Mustaufi had left for Kabul, and would be followed a few days later by Taj Mahomed Khan Seistani.

It is said that many of the Durani soldiers enlisted by the Amir in the regiments that accompanied him to Kabul have deserted.

Zamindawar continues restless and disturbed, the Alizais refusing to obey the authority of the present Governor at Girishk, Mowladad Khan, a retainer of Sirdar Mahomed Yasif Khan, whom the latter left in Pusht-i-Rud when ordered to Farrah.

Gul Mahomed, who rendered excellent service to the Amir during Ayub's advance, was the former Governor of Pusht-i-Rud, and he has considerable local influence. It was through the advice and influence of Colonel St. John that he was retained in his appointment by the Amir's officials after our departure from Kandahar. The Amir's policy towards Kandahari Sirdars made it difficult to employ Gul Mahomed again in South Afghanistan, so the Amir has taken him to Kabul.

From Herat, news comes that Sekunder Khan, son of Sultan Ahmed Jan, had appeared at Ghorian, and sent letters to people at Herat urging them to make a prisoner of the Governor and drive the Kabulis out of the province. Sirdar Abdul Kudus Khan immediately despatched a strong body of troops to Ghorian.

Abdul Rasul Khan is said to be liked in Kandahar, and will probably do well.

It is rumoured in Kandahar that Ayub is not at Meshed, but still in Sunni Khana, in the province of Ghaya.

THE Lahore paper hears from Peshawur that Hossein Shah and his brother, the two sons of Baba Mian, have been sentenced to death, subject to the confirmation of the Chief Court, for their part in the murder of Makadar Mian. These men are of some note and influence, and their execution will cause some excitement on the frontier. An appeal will be instituted in the Chief Court against the decision of the Sessions Judge. A younger brother of Jalandar Khan, a refugee from Kabul, has reached Peshawur.

AGREEING that our relations with Upper Burma are not satisfactory, the Statesman considers that the only way to improve them appears to be to use force, or to apply threats which may lead to the use of force. At the same time they are not such as clearly to justify a resort to extreme measures, and though in such a difficulty a former Government might have "found a pretext" for war, in the absence of a just cause, that is a sort of diplomacy which is not to be expected from the present administration.

THE Resolution of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab on the Report of the Inspector-General of prisons in the Province, for the year 1880, has just been published. The prison population of all classes amounted in the year to 65,189 being 5,075 less than in the year preceding. The number of prisoners received during the year was 50,309, against 55,354 in 1879, while the daily average for 1880 was 14,673, or 795 less than the year before. This decrease is a natural consequence of the diminution in serious crime which was observed in the report on the administration of criminal justice. It occurred in 25 jails, while in the remaining 10 the numbers rose. The increase attained its highest proportion at Bannu, Kohat, and Jehlum. At Fazilka, a jail established for short imprisonments in default of sureties to keep the peace only, were admitted more freely than in the previous year. The reason is given for the increase at Kohat, that frontier jails are frequently liable to sudden temporary calls on their accommodation. Out of the total jail population of more than 65,000, twenty-three prisoners effected their escape. Of these cases nearly one-third occurred as might be expected, in the Rupar Central Jail, where the prisoners are almost entirely employed on out-door work. Sixteen were recaptured, and three of those who escaped in former years were again put back to jail. The average rate of mortality on the jail population was 7·95 per cent., as against 14·01 per cent. in the preceding year. Sir Robert Egerton remarks on this [illegible] information received from home [illegible] possibilities of some important [illegible] Prison Rules. For [illegible] what we have [illegible] London Correspondent [illegible] officials probable [illegible] to suspend [illegible] which [illegible] allowance [illegible] British [illegible] years [illegible] to be left for [illegible] decision to decide.

THE Resolution of the Government of India on the Report of the Inspector-General of Prisons in the Punjab for the year 1880, has just been published. The Lieutenant-Governor observes with satisfaction that there has been a considerable decrease in the rate of mortality, which has fallen from 14·01 per cent. in 1879 to 7·8 per cent. in the past year. Even with this decrease, His Honor regrets that the rate of mortality has been unduly high, when whether it be compared with the death-rate of the free population in the Punjab or with the rates of mortality in the prisons of neighbouring provinces. There were no deaths among civil prisoners, and a marked improvement is observable in the health of prisoners under trial; but the mortality among convicts was no less than 8·14 per cent. According to the returns, the most prevalent form of disease was intermittent fever, which accounted for 8,916 admissions to hospital and 194 deaths. Of 3,019 cases of dysentery and diarrhœa, 323 ended fatally, and 248 deaths were due to respiratory diseases. It is remarkable that only 162 admissions to hospital and 44 deaths are attributed to remittent and continued fever; but the Inspector-General is of opinion that these statistics are untrustworthy, and the Lieutenant-Governor considers that there is reason to believe that many cases of remittent and continued fever have been wrongly described as the intermittent form of that disease. His Honor is further confirmed by the figures given for the jail at Rawalpindi and by the facts brought to light in a special report submitted by the Inspector-General on the alarmingly high rate of mortality which prevailed there during the past year. Of the daily average number in the Rawalpindi jail, 158 per cent. were admitted to hospital for intermittent fever of which disease 17·05 per cent. died ; while not a single case of remittent or continued fever is reported to have occurred during the year. The Lieutenant-Governor concurs with much that the Inspector-General has written regarding the general causes of high mortality in jails, in which the death-rate must be expected to vary with and usually to exceed that of the external population ; nevertheless the death-rate in the prisons of this province has during the past year borne an unduly high proportion to the mortality of 27 per cent. among the free population, and has been such as to call for careful and searching enquiry. His Honor is of opinion that it cannot be attributed to overcrowding in prisons, every care having been taken, when sentences were beyond the permanent accommodation available in any jail, to provide for the excess in tents and the jail workshops. Nor does there seem any reason to connect the evil which still exists (though happily to a less extent than in the year before) with insufficiency of diet, seeing that the dietary has been fixed at a scale considered by experts to be adopted to the wants of working-men ; while medical officers have full power to grant more liberal diet to prisoners coming into jail in a sickly or feeble condition and increased rations are invariably allowed to convicts employed on earth-work. It is further noticeable that the jails in which the rate of mortality has been highest during the past two years are those in which the food of the prisoners is regulated by the non-assimilation scale. At the same time His Honor observes that the sufficiency of any scale of diet is dependent on the completeness of the arrangements made to secure the full allowance being given to the prisoners. This is a point of the highest importance, and has received special notice in a circular recently received from the Government of India in the Home Department, and in the present state of things it is peculiarly incumbent on all Superintendents of prisons to watch with the utmost care the arrangements for the preparation and distribution of food to the prisoners under their charge. The fact that in several jails in the province the average loss of weight ranged between 4 and 7 seers points to some laxity in the administration of the prisons in which such results have been observed. The Lieutenant-Governor concurs to some extent in the opinion expressed by the Inspector-General that even when each prisoner is assured that amount of superficial area and cubic space in jail and that quantity of lateral ventilation which sanitary science declares to be sufficient for the human body, nevertheless in our present system of jail management the convict lives in a state of crowding which is unfavourable to health, and in some degree this may account for the rate of mortality in prisons being higher than that of the free population. The associated system doubtless facilitates the spread of endemic disease. At the same time it would be impossible to introduce the separate system of confinement without incurring expenditure so large as to prohibit even the contemplation of the idea, and it is further to be noted that intermittent fevers, dysentery and diarhœa, which are not infectious diseases, accounted for 17 out of the total 1,132 deaths. An important safeguard against the spread in any jail of infectious disease is the temporary seclusion and careful examination of all prisoners on their entering jail. This is a duty the importance of which cannot be too much impressed on officers in charge of prisons. At the same time there is reason to believe that it has not everywhere been carefully fulfilled. This defect is especially observable in the Rawalpindi jail, where, with a rate of mortality so high that it is impossible to attribute it only to causes beyond the control of careful supervision, it is nevertheless recorded that only one prisoner out of nearly one thousand received during the year entered the jail in bad health. The figures supplied with the report for 1879 to show the rates of mortality obtaining after various lengths of imprisonment gave some colour to the inference that mortality increased with length of imprisonment. It now appears that these returns have hitherto been wrongly compiled, having been arranged in some instances according to length of sentences, and not with reference to periods of imprisonment passed and expired. This error has been corrected in the report under review, and there is some satisfaction in noticing that longer terms in prison do not imply a higher mortality, the death-rate being greatest for the first six months, less after two years than after one, and less again between three years and seven. The most unhealthy jails in the province were those at Rawalpindi, Peshawar, and Ferozepore. Of these, the Rawalpindi jail stands by a long way foremost as pre-eminently the most unhealthy and fatal. In Peshawar the death-rate, though high, yet sank from 17·75 in 1879 to 8·72 in 1880, although the year was an unusually unhealthy one in that district. In Ferozepore the death-rate [illegible] and it has not only increased [illegible] to a fearful proportion of 40·40 per cent. REGARDING the Zanzibar slave traffic and the measures taken for its suppression, the London papers received by the last mail announce that in reply to inquiries, the Admiralty have been informed that the Undine and Harrier, schooners, intended for special service on the Zanzibar coast, can be got ready for sea in about a week, and, in consequence of the disaster to Captain Brownrigg's party, they are being hurriedly pushed forward for commission. Generally speaking the resistance offered to the blue-jackets in steam pinnaces is not of a grave character, but as the crews of some of the dhows have firearms, it was determined to give the yachts an offensive strength, and each has been supplied with a nine-pounder gun, with 170 rounds of ammunition, and also a machine gun, besides carrying rifles, pistols, swords, boarding pikes, and axes. The Undine and Harrier, which are to be lieutenants' commands, have been fitted out with a view to their making protracted cruises, each having a large provision stowage and a condensing galley, while with their spread of canvas they will be able to overhaul any dhow, and, having a very light draught of water, can proceed without difficulty up shallow creeks.

IT is curious that English cricketing elevens can be induced to visit Australia, considering the treatment they receive. One English eleven narrowly escaped being mobbed by a crowd of Australian roughs, and now we read in a Melbourne paper that there has been an unpleasant dispute between the Victorian Cricket Association and Mr. J. Conway, who is acting as the agent of the English Eleven, at present on a visit to the colonies. The visitors signed with the Melbourne Cricket Club 10 per cent. of the receipts for the use of their ground, and the association also asked 10 per cent. for their patronage. The charge made by the association was based on the grounds that they would have the selecting of the Victorian Eleven, and that as the Englishmen's match would be played immediately before the inter-colonial contest, their receipts from the latter event would be materially reduced. Mr. Conway telegraphed from New South Wales that the English Eleven refused to pay the 10 per cent., and that they would play without the patronage of the association. The press and the public generally supported the visitors, and denounced the charge made by the association as an extortion. To make any charge whatever for 'patronage' was regarded by the general public as indefensible, and the demand of 10 per cent. was condemned as a species of black mail. The association, it should be explained, consists of representatives of the principal cricket clubs, the metropolitan and suburban clubs electing the bulk of the association. Altogether the members about 20, and the resolution making the charge was carried in the first instance by only 12 votes to 8. The association, which does not represent the public, nor even the cricketers of Victoria as a body, was thus divided upon the matter, and the pressure of public opinion compelled a modification of the demand. A special meeting was held last Friday evening, when the resolution under which the charge of 10 per cent. was made was rescinded by a votes to 6, and a proposition to abandon a charge altogether was lost by only two votes. A compromise was then arrived at, and a resolution adopted reducing the charge to 5 per cent. It is understood that the Eleven will consent to pay the reduced charge of 5 per cent. on all matches played against Victoria, but they protest that there is no justification for such a charge."

A PRETTY squabble is going on in the Russian papers between Dr. Gayfelder, the head of the medical service during Skobeleff's expedition and Dr. Stcherbak, the head of the Red Cross ambulance, with reference to the treatment of the wounded at Geok Tepe. The controversy arose out of a lecture given some weeks ago by Dr. Gayfelder before the Society of Russian Physicians, in which he stated that the hospital accommodation in the Russian Camp was woefully deficient, that there was a lack of doctors and surgical instruments, and that many of the wounded had to lie on the bare ground owing to the insufficiency of beds and linen. To this the head of the Red Cross Ambulance retorted that the medical arrangements, so far as the Red Cross section was concerned, were excellent, that the wounded were well looked after by the Red Cross officials, and that it was the army medical service which broke down—Gayfelder, the head of it, skulking the whole of the campaign, and keeping away from the hospital altogether when Skobeleff had them moved, with the camp, to a spot under the enemy's fire. Against this retort has been made, in which the Red Cross Society's representatives are charged with peculation and appropriating to themselves comforts sent for the use of the troops. Both parties promising further and fuller disclosures, the Russian public may get at the truth ere long.

A ST. PETERSBURG correspondent, telegraphing to a London paper on December 5, states :—The Novoe Vremyen to-day publishes further intelligence from Kuldja, confirming its recent announcement that the Chinese will not take possession of Kuldja until next spring, and stating that they intend to erect fortifications on the western frontier. These works will be constructed at the following four points, namely, at Talka, on the ruins of the town of Bajan, at the town of Kuldja, and on the right bank of the Ili, and, lastly, at a place called Gurgun Soumoun, on the left bank of the Ili. The Chinese also propose to erect three forts on the River Khorgos. The residence of the Chinese Governor will be on the right bank of the Ili, probably at Bajan. The Chinese authorities are stated to intend transferring 8,000 families from Kashgaria in order to compensate for the depopulation caused by the emigration to Russian territory since the retrocession of Kuldja to China. During the last four months there have been two Mussulman revolts at Gangi-Hissar against the Chinese garrison, 200 of whom were massacred. The Chinese beheaded 400 of the rebels.

THE same correspondent affirms that "Emigrants from Afghan Badakshan to Kashgaria have solicited Chinese nationality and assistance, in order to free Badakshan from the Afghan yoke. Their request has been refused by the Chinese authorities as calculated to give umbrage to England, a Power with whom China was on friendly relations."

A HOME service paper is informed that it is the intention of the War Office to organise a small corps of mounted infantry early in the spring of the ensuing year. The men will be volunteers principally from the cavalry brigade at Aldershot, with such men as have some idea of riding from the infantry corps at Aldershot who may elect to join for the service. We believe it is intended to have the corps ready to take part in the autumn manœuvres at the end of next summer. The measure will be purely tentative in character, and, if successful, a strong force equipped in a similar manner will be permanently added to the establishment.

A CORRESPONDENT, writing to the Intransigeant from Geneva, affirms that that town is infested with the Czar's spies, who affect revolutionary principles, draw up flaming manifestoes, and endeavour by every means in their power to lead on and compromise the refugees in the eyes of the Swiss Government. As soon as these worthies are detected they decamp, their places being filled by other equally zealous persons. The Whites are not in particularly good odour in the Free Republic just now, and if the information supplied to the Intransigeant is correct it would look as though the Russian Government were bent on embroiling the Swiss Confederation to extremities and on compelling it in self-defence to adopt harsh measures towards the exiles. Whether the method employed is a equitably moral one is a question [illegible] to be left for public decision to decide.

THE ORIENT.

THE Orient Magazine has attained its first birthday, apropos to which event, the editor writes :—

A year ago the contemplated advent of the Orient provoked many lugubrious predictions. We were told that no previous enterprise of the kind had thriven in Bombay, that there was little or no market for the wares we wished to offer to the public, and that our attempt would be certain to end in failure. We refused to believe there was not room in India for a magazine carefully conducted, which aimed at becoming specially Indian and Anglo-Indian in character, and more and more replete with that local interest which is necessarily wanting in foreign periodicals. The result of our experiment has fully justified our predictions. The Orient on this its anniversary, stands on a sure and safe basis, firmly rooted in popular esteem. It sees its influence increase, its friends and readers multiplied, and it bids fair to attain a very large circulation. We need hardly say that no efforts will be spared on our part to merit and increase the favour we have obtained. Since it is our own evident interest to secure the best literary talent, and make all possible improvements and additions to the magazine, few promises are necessary, especially as our short but honourable and successful past, is the best guarantee of what the future will be. For the kind and flattering appreciation with which the press has honoured us, we can never be sufficiently grateful. Generous words of encouragement and approval have comefrom the farthest limits of the great Indian empire, and will not soon be forgotten by us. Our hearty thanks are also due to our first friends and subscribers, to those who recognized our merits before the seal of public approbation had been set on them, and we do not forget the supporters who have more recently gathered round us. To one and all may 1882 prove a year of peace and plenty, and may the Orient, itself successful, carry with it into every house it enters prosperity and contentment, health and riches.

THE MARWADI.

A SCENE AT A MARWADI'S PEDI (BANK.)*

(Discovered Shett Gadhachand, his clerk Vandrachand, and the peasant Murkhchand.)

The Peasant.—Shettjee Saheb, lend me 50 rupees ; I shall soon return you the sum with the interest due thereon.

The Shett.—Go, you Sala ! I shan't lend a pie.

(To the clerk takes the peasant aside.)

The Clerk.—O Murkha, give me 10 Rupees when you return the sum to the Shett. If so I may persuade him to lend you Rs. 50.

The Peasant.—Shettjee ! Bappjee, I am poor, I can't afford to pay you Rs. 10.

The Clerk.—Can't help it. If you want money, do as I bid you do, or go to Jahanam.

The Peasant.—Shett ! Saheb ! You are my Mâ Bâp, pray agree for 5 Rupees.

The Clerk.—No, no, you gadha (ass).

The Peasant.—Take 8 Rupees, but do something.

The Clerk.—You are my old friend, so I agree for 8 Rupees. Do you know what my influence in the police is ?

(The clerk goes to the Shett).

The Clerk.—Shettji, the man is honest. Pray lend him 50 Rupees, and get from him a bond for Rs. 75. That's all. A very good transaction, indeed ! Let not the opportunity slip away. The interest is 25 per cent., so you will get Rs. 84 while you pay but Rs. 50.

The Shett.—Is the peasant ready to bind himself for Rs. 75 at 25 per cent. ?

(Aside to Clerk.—Laughs heartily) Ha ! Ha ! ! Ha ! ! ! Ready ? Good, we shall kick him, and then he will be ready.

The Shett.—Do as you like, Meta Saheb. You are very clever. No !

(The clerk calls the peasant and asks him to sign a bond of Rs. 75 at 25 per cent. per annum. The money to be returned at the end of a year.)

The Peasant.—Oh ! Bapji. Have you mercy on me. I take Rs. 50, but shall have to pay Rs. 94 (84+10 the clerk's fee) Oh ! let me go.

(The clerk kicks and bullies the poor peasant, threatening never to lend a pie. The peasant quietly signs the bond, takes the money and, trembling, departs.)

N. B.—The peasant is not acquainted with any of the three rupees, so he makes a cross instead of signing his name.

After the departure of the peasant, the clerk, at the suggestion of the Shett, tears up the bond and prepares a new one, by which the peasant is to pay interest on Rs. 100 at 50 per cent. per annum. The Shett forges the peasant's sign.

II.

(The following is a copy of the forged bond.)

To Shettji Saheb Gadhachand Dobochand.

SIR,—I, Murkhachand, the son of Garjuchand, hereby borrow of you Rs. 100 (hundred) at the rate of 50 per cent. per annum. I am to return the same at the end of one year with the interest due thereon. If I fail to do so, you may drag me before the Judge Saheb, Mr. Simple. Sir, I have the honor to be the licker of your foot-dust,

(Signed) KHEDUT MURKHACHAND,
the son of Gurjuchand.
(Name in vernacular,)

खेडुत मूर्खाचंदने गर्जुचंदनो छोकरो.
(The cross of the peasant.)†

III.

A year has passed away since the Marwadi forged the peasant's sign. Unfortunately for the peasant, a famine threatened the country, so the poor Murkha could not collect the money to be paid to the whily shett. About a month or two before the end of the year, the usurer sent a notice to the peasant, threatening to drag him before the munsiff, Mr. Simple. The poor man went to the Indian Shylock, when the following conversation took place :—

The Shett.—Well, murkha, your year has passed away. I have not a pie from you.

The Peasant.—Oh ! Ma Bap ! This famine has ruined me. Pray wait for a year more, and then I shall pay you in full.

The Shett.—You sala hajam (barber), aren't you ashamed to give me such a reply ? Gadha ! You are a Thug. Thus you want to "eat up" my money. That won't do. You will soon reap the fruits of your wicked tricks.

The Peasant, with tears in his eyes.—Oh ! incarnation of mercy ! Oh Shettji, have pity on me. My children starve at home. We are naked. If you allow me a year more, we shall ever pray for you.

The Shett.—You dog ! enough of your nonsense. This flattery won't move me. Give me my 100 Rupees with 50 Rupees, the interest due thereon. You are not to omit 20 Rupees, my mehta's fee. Give it, Rs. 170, just now, or go to your maternal uncle's (go to jail).

The Peasant.—Oh Bapji ! You have lent 50 Rupees and not Rs. 100.

(So saying the poor Murkha cries bitterly and beats his breast and raves).

The Shett.—You rascal ! Dare you say I am a forger. Quoi hei (who is here ?) (enter a fierce looking man with a club in his right hand.)

The club-man.—Hajar (here, Sir).

The Shett.—Teach this dog of a peasant to obey me.

(The clubman belabours the peasant with his club till the poor Murkha is half dead. A day or two after, the Shett lays a complaint before Mr. Simple).

IV.

The trial and sentence passed against the Murkha.

(Discovered Mr. Simple sitting pompously with a punkha swinging over his head. The peasant and Mr. Badnas, the plaintiff's Vakil, standing before him.)

The Vakil.—May it please your honour to know that the peasant Murkhachand, the son of one Gajarchund, a peasant of the pargana (district) of Kalyan, a subject of my client, Shett Gadhachand Dobachand, of the same district, Rs. 100 at 50 per cent. per annum for one year. He is bound to pay the amount by a bond executed by Mr. Vandra, the shett's clerk. The defendant declines to pay the amount. So I hope your honour will decree that the money may be given to my client, together with the expenses of the suit.

The Judge.—Mr. Badnas, do you want to call any witnesses for the plaintiff ?

The Vakil.—Yes, your honour (the crier calls Vandrachand, the clerk)

Vandrachand.—My name is Vandrachund. I am only the son of the well-known Bilada. I know the first book of Euclid.

The Vakil.—Do you know of any bond signed by Murkhachund.

Vandrachand.—Yes, I saw the bond being signed by the defendant.

The Peasant.—Oh Judge, Ma, Bap, I never signed that bond ; my sign is forged by the Shett.

The Vakil.—This is open defamation. Do you think Mr. Gadhachand capable of stooping to such meanness ? I hope the peasant will be taught to behave respectfully.

The Judge.—Murkachund, You have no witness, Mr. Vandra says that you signed the bond. I should believe Mr. Vandra only, because he is the son of our well-known nasar Bilada.

Murkhachund.—My Farmeshwar ! both the shett and the mehta are the greatest chors (scoundrels) breathing on the surface of the globe.

The Judge.—Well, you gadha, if you go on speaking that way, I shall pass judgment against you.

Murkhachund,—Oh ! Pardon (so saying weeps bitterly and beats his breast and raves.)

The Judge.—You dhongi (cheat), is your father dead, that you cry ? Now hear my judgment and see what your roughness has done for you.

(The Judgment.)

It is well-known that Shett Gadhachund Dobachund is a man of honour and integrity. In this case the plaintiff sues one Murkhachund, the son of Gadhachund, for Rs. 225, out of which Rs. 100 were lent to him last year at 50 per cent per annum. 30 Rupees are to be given to Mr. Vandra as his fee, and the rest is for expenses incurred in suing him. When the case was being heard, the defendant accused the plaintiff of forgery, but the position of the shett makes it plain that the money was lent and borrowed. Hereby I order the same Murkhachund to pay the debt which justly is due. If he refuses to pay, the shett is at liberty to sell all the peasant's property by public auction and to take the money gained thereby. If the money be less than the sum required, the peasant may be sent to jail.

(Signed) F. S. SIMPLE.

Dated 5th February, 1847.

(Thus by avarice and forgery the poor peasant is ruined. The money gained by the sale amounted to only Rs. 200, and being unable to pay the remainder, he is sent to jail to linger there for the rest of his life. His family suffered all the pangs of famine and died miserably, in a dirty cell the peasant passed the remainder of his life.)

N. B.—Thus through the ignorance of the judge and the undetectable tricks of the Marwadis, many poor families are ruined.

* The high rates of interest a Marwadi takes, are proverbial, and in the subjoined sheets a native illustrates the evils of Marwadi usury. He is very sorry to find that even the village Munsifs are frequently ignorant of the zulum of the Indian Shylocks.

† Not less iniquitous is the zulum of the village police, and it is probable that another contribution will be given, showing it in its true light.—H. N. VAKIL.

THE PENSIONERS' CHRISTMAS FETE.

THE annual treat to the European Pensioners will take place on Saturday afternoon in the Oval. All pensioners and their families are invited. There will, as usual, be dinner for the men, and tea and cakes for their wives and children, after due discussion of which good things, there will be dancing and other sports. It is expected that two bands during the evening will be in attendance. The proceedings will commence at 2-30 p. m., Bombay time. This will be the last fete of the kind at which General Atchison, C. B., who has always taken great interest in, and has done much towards getting up, these entertainments, will be present in Bombay, as he is about to relinquish his tenure of the district command, on promotion. The arrangements for the fete are as usual, in the able hands of Dr. Arnott.

THE SANSKRIT PROFESSORSHIP.

MOST of us, when we were good little boys or girls, heard with interest the tale of the dog in the manger, who, unable to eat the hay himself, prevented the poor ox, its rightful owner, from doing so ; but the iniquities of the surly canine and the measure of our virtuous indignation would have been greatly increased, if he had called in an alien animal—say a foreign ass—to devour the provender of the unfortunate ruminant. To send to Germany for a scholar to fill the vacant Sanskrit professorship appears to us an attempt to emulate the conduct of the dog in the manger, and a proceeding so repugnant at once to justice and common sense, that we can hardly believe it has ever been seriously contemplated.

There are scholars here whose ability, industry, and special knowledge, eminently fit them for the post ; and surely this office belongs of right to the sons of the soil ; to those who have drunk deep of oriental lore at the fountain head, rather than to the imbibers of the driblets that have filtered to Germany. No one, we think, will deny to Professor Bhandarkar great learning and solid qualifications for the vacant chair ; and even if it were possible to ignore his claims, there are still Professor M. M. Kunté and many other capable men who have already shown what they know and what they can do ; shown it so well that we venture to prophesy their services will certainly be called into requisition to instruct the new German professor, and coach him up to his duties, if he should unfortunately find his way to these shores.

So far, however, we have found no serious proof that a foreign nomination is really intended, and we are inclined to regard the rumour as a joke. As a joke it may pass, but executed it would be equivalent to carrying coals to Newcastle, and an unjust and illogical step that could hardly fail to provoke much well-grounded discontent.—The Orient..

MORTALITY IN PUNJAB JAILS.

IN the course of a Review, just issued, of the Report of the Inspector-General of Prisons in the Punjab for 1880, the Lieutenant-Governor (Sir Robert Egerton) writes :—The Lieutenant-Governor observes with satisfaction that there has been a considerable decrease in the rate of mortality, which has fallen from 14·01 per cent. in 1879 to 7·8 per cent. in the past year. Even with this decrease, His Honor regrets that the rate of mortality has been unduly high, when whether it be compared with the death-rate of the free population in the Punjab or with the rates of mortality in the prisons of neighbouring provinces. There were no deaths among civil prisoners, and

ZOEDONE My good opinion of ZOEDONE as a social drink has been amply confirmed by further observation."—
NORMAN KERR, M.D., F.L.S.
August 8th, 1881.

Dr. G. S. Ranking, Surgeon, Indian Medical Department, writes of it thus:—"I am of opinion that in 'Zoedone' is to be found a complete solution of the problem which has long exercised the minds of the medical profession in India, viz., the discovery of a beverage which shall assuage thirst, restore nervous waste, and, while being palatable, be also non-alcoholic.
